

Free Seminar @ Life Works

Wednesday, March 10 at 7:30pm - For Women Only.

Freeing Yourself to Have A Luscious Relationship

We all have psychological armor that we have created to protect us from disappointment, being hurt and having our hearts broken one more time. However, it may also be stopping us from having what we want in our lives such as more ease, support, intimacy, and lasting, reliable, unconditional love.

Perhaps, in addition to keeping us safe, this protection is weighing us down and making it difficult to have the delightful relationship we deserve and could be replaced with more discreet, efficient, modern "heart-safety". This evening we will investigate the various ways and styles of protection we have created and see if there are better ways to take care of ourselves. We will talk about replacing what doesn't work with knowledge, wisdom and authenticity that does...so we can have more of what we want — everyday.

Join us as Marilyn discusses new discoveries and observations on how to live with more satisfaction and ease. This evening is designed to welcome and introduce guests to Life Works as well as deepen, enrich and review focal points of the Workshop for graduates.

Goal: To discover if Life Works is the place for you to explore having more of what you want in life. Guests are invited to spend the evening with people who have completed our courses. If you have friends or family who are interested in the workshops, please invite them.
